

I believe that Indiana's laws are much more restrictive and should be used as an example for the FCC. The FCC's ruling may allow telemarketers to begin contacting me on the phone that I pay for when I do not want them to. I don't feel that the FCC's resolution is far reaching enough.